

Abstract

A device for impact sensing is described which detects an impact by means of a pressure, a normalized signal being supplied to a processor for analyzing the pressure signal.

- 5 This normalization takes place either in the pressure sensor, by the sensor element (1) itself or by a signal preprocessor (4), or it takes place in the processor (8).

(Figure 1)